

International Association for Shell and Spatial Structures (IASS) Annual Symposium 2023

First two plenary speakers confirmed

IASS 2023 will have eight eminent researchers/practitioners as plenary speakers. We are thrilled to announce that the first two plenary speakers have been confirmed. They are Mutsuro Sasaki from Japan and Janet Eschelman from the USA.

Mutsuro Sasaki

Mutsuro Sasaki is an expert of shell structures and a pioneer in the field of computational morphogenesis in structural engineering. His research focuses on the development of design techniques using structural optimisation and form finding based on the mathematical principles of structural mechanics. Completed works in which he played a pivotal role include Meiso-no-Mori Crematorium (2006), Rolex Learning Centre (2008, shown about), and Teshima Art Museum (2010). Sasaki has been a long-term collaborator of Toyo Ito, Sejima and Nishizawa of SANAA, and Arata Isozaki. He has received numerous awards including AIJ Prize in 2003 for Sendai Mediateque and IASS Tuboi Prize for Extended ESO method in 2004.

Janet Eschelman

Artist Janet Eschelman defies categorization. She creates billowing sculpture engineered to the scale of buildings, choreographed by wind and light, that shifts from being an object you look at, to a living environment you can get lost in.

Eschelman's TED talk "Taking Imagination Seriously" has been translated into 35 languages and viewed by millions. Recipient of the Guggenheim Fellowship, Smithsonian American Ingenuity Award, Harvard Loeb Fellowship, and Fulbright Lectureship, Eschelman was named an Architectural Digest Innovator for "changing the very essence of urban spaces." Oprah ranked Eschelman's work #1 on her "List of 50 Things That Make You Say Wow!"
